Hints and Tips Unit 3

The information in this guide will be helpful to you when you are ready to complete your assessment:

Unit 3: Working with organisational and legal guidelines

8000-256 Working with organisational and legal guidelines

8000-261 Diversity in the workplace

Section 1 – Understand employees' legal rights

Q1. Outline an employee's statutory rights under UK law

You must provide a short description (one small paragraph) for at least 2 employee statutory rights.

Q2. Outline parts of organisational policy that cover employee rights and responsibilities

You will need to outline 2 different parts of an organisation policy that cover employee rights and responsibilities. Your outline must be a short description and at least a small paragraph for each part will be needed.

Q3. Outline the purpose of a contract of employment

A small description that outlines the main purpose of a contract of employment is needed for this answer.

Q4. Explain why a contract of employment is important

As an explain answer, you will need a more detailed answer than the previous ones in this section. You could include a little of what's included in a contract of employment and why those parts are important.

Section 2 – Organisational policies, equality and diversity

Q1. Outline the team leader's responsibilities under the organisation's dismissal and disciplinary policy

You must ensure that you are covering the team leader's responsibilities within this outline. What is their role within the dismissal and disciplinary policy and why is this important?

Q2. Describe the employee grievance process as defined in an organisation's policy

You will need to describe what the employee must do to raise a grievance and the steps that will be taken once a grievance is raised.

Q3. Outline the organisational policy on Equality and Diversity in the workplace

Within your outline (short description) include the key points that you'd expect to find within an equality & diversity policy. Add a little detail for each key point that you include e.g. why is it important and what is the benefit to the employee?

Q4. Explain how a team leader can promote equality and diversity in the team

Think about what a team leader can do in their own practice and how they might inform their team of equality & diversity needs. Try and distinguish between equality and diversity and provide detail for the different ways of promoting each.

Section 3 - Dealing with conflict and inappropriate behaviour

Q1. Give an example of inappropriate behaviour in relation to equality and diversity in the workplace and how it should be addressed

Your example should be split into 2 parts. First give an example of what would be considered inappropriate behaviour, include detail for why it's inappropriate. Imagine the reader doesn't know anything about this example and you're describing it to them. Next include how this inappropriate should be addressed. Think about what personnel should be involved, are there any policies/procedures that should be followed, what steps should be taken, what are the levels of authority?

Q2. State the organisation's referral process for dealing with inappropriate behaviour that is beyond the team leader's authority

Do not just list the steps involved in the referral process, you should also add some detail to briefly describe each step. Think about when a team leader might need to refer inappropriate behaviour, how they know when to refer it, who they'd refer it to and what happens next.

Q3. Give an example of a situation where an individual's views may clash with organisational expectations

You may use an example from your own workplace/experience or provide a more general example where an individual's views may clash with organisational expectations. Describe the example, what are the views of the individual and why do they differ from the organisation?

Q4. Explain the possible implications for a team leader in dealing with a clash between individual values and organisational expectations

As an explain answer, you should detail what the implications are for the team leader. Think about the organisational expectation and the individual values. How will the team leader approach the problem, how should they communicate and show respect for both parties?
