Hints and Tips Unit 3

The information in this guide will be helpful to you when you are ready to complete your assessment for the following unit:

Unit 3 - Understand children and young people's mental health concerns

Session 1 – Understand behaviour that is associated with mental health concerns in children and young people

Q1. In the table below, identify a range of behaviours that may indicate concerns about a young person's mental health. You should identify at least four behaviours. [1.1]

You looked at the various types of behaviours that may indicate concern in session 1 page 2. Make sure that you provide at least 4 examples in your response. This is an identify question so you can just list the behaviours you don't need to go into detail but the more information you provide demonstrates your understanding of the topic.

Q2. In the box below, explain how a child or young person expresses how they are feeling through their behaviour. [1.2]

To help you answer this question use the course materials and your own research to explain how children and young people's behaviour expresses how they are feeling. You may also have personal experience that you could use to illustrate how feelings and expression are linked.

Q3. In the box below, describe harmful behaviour that children and young people may demonstrate as a way of coping with their feelings. [1.3]

When answering this question use the information provided in session 1 page 4 of the course materials for guidance. As well as the types mentioned in the course materials you may also have knowledge of other types of harmful behaviour that you could consider mentioning. Make sure to provide a sufficient detail in your response to demonstrate your understanding of this topic.

Q4. In the box below, explain the importance of early intervention when identifying behavioural concerns. [1.4]

For this question you need to consider why it is important to intervene as early as possible when behavioural concerns are identified. Think about what early intervention will achieve. You should also consider the consequences of early intervention not taking place.

Session 2 – Understand stress and anxiety in children and young people

Q1. In the table below, provide a definition for the two terms listed. [2.1]

This is quite a straightforward question in which you simply have to provide a definition of what stress and anxiety are. Use the course materials for guidance with this or you may want to research the terms before answering. The main thing to remember for this is that you give a definition in your own words, don't just copy it from the course materials or an external website.

Q2. In the box below, outline the relationship between resilience and stress. [2.2]

Before answering this question make sure that you fully understand what resilience means. You then need to consider the relationship between this and stress. If someone is resilient what does it allow them to do, how is it of benefit?

Q3. In the box below, describe possible causes of stress and anxiety for children and young people. [2.3]

For this question you need to think about the possible causes of stress and anxiety. Use the course materials for guidance with this but you may also consider other causes of stress and anxiety that are not mentioned in the course materials. You may also have personal experience of this that you could use to enhance your answer.

Q4. In the box below, explain why stress can be both helpful and harmful. [2.4]

For this question you need to consider how stress can be helpful and harmful. Think about situations when stress can be a positive and also when stress can be damaging. This is an explain question so try to be as detailed as possible in your response.

Q5. In the box below, describe how to recognise signs of stress and anxiety in children and young people. [2.5]

When formulating your answer to this question think about the various ways that children and young people behave or act that may indicate signs of stress and anxiety, what are signs of stress and anxiety?

Session 3 – Understand depression in children and young people

Q1. In the box below, define the term 'depression'. [3.1]

This is quite a straightforward question in which you simply have to provide a definition of the term 'depression'. Use the course materials for guidance with this or you may want to research the terms before answering. The main thing to remember for this is that you give a definition in your own words, don't just copy it from the course materials or an external website.

Q2. In the box below, describe the difference between low mood and depression.. [3.2]

For this question you need to consider three things when formulating your answer, what is low mood, what is depression and how are they different. Make sure you provide sufficient detail in your answer as this is a describe question.

Q3. In the box below, describe possible causes of depression for children and young people. [3.3]

Think about the different causes of depression for children and young people and then describe what these are. Make sure that you don't list or bullet point as this is a describe question.

Q4. In the box below, describe how to recognise signs that a child or young person could be depressed. [3.4]

For this question think about the way children and young people behave that may indicate that they could be depressed. Think about physical, verbal or emotional signs that they may be displaying.

Q5. In the table below, give examples of how depression may affect children and young people. [3.5]

There is space for four examples in the table and ideally you should give 4 but three would be sufficient. Make sure that your examples are clear and consider the different ways that children and young people may be affected by depression.

Session 4 – Know about specific mental health conditions that children and young people may experience

Q1. In the table below, outline a range of other mental health conditions that may present in children and young people [4.1]

For this question you need to think about other mental health condition that may present as well as the most common ones, discussed in sessions 1 to 3. As well as using your learning from session 4 to answer this you should carry out some research to assist you in answering this question. Make sure that you provided the four examples requested. The following website has some useful information.

Conditions \(youngminds.org.uk\)

Q2. In the box below, describe how to recognise a range of mental health conditions in Children and young people [4.2]

Use your learning from the video and your own research describe how you can recognise the range of mental health conditions that children and young people may have. Is there a distinctive type of behaviour or attitude that they can display? The following website has some useful information that you will find useful.

Child mental health: recognising and responding to issues | NSPCC Learning

Q3. In the box below, describe how other mental health conditions may impact children and young people. [4.3]

For this question you need to think about the other mental health condition that you have learnt about may impact children and young people. Think about how it will affect them both in the short term and long term.

Q4. In the box below, describe what might constitute a mental health 'crisis' or emergency. [4.4]

For this question you need to use your learning carry out research and then describe what would constitute a mental health crisis or emergency. The following website has information that you may find useful.
