Hints and Tips Unit 2

The information in this guide will be helpful to you when you are ready to complete your assessment for the following unit:

Unit 2 - Understand factors which may affect children and young people's mental health

Session 1 – Understand Risk Factors

Q1. In the Table below, describe how risk factors can impact the mental health of children and young people. You must provide at least 3 examples.

There are several risk factors mentioned on page 3 of session 1. using these for guidance describe in your own words select three and then describe the impact that they can have on mental health.

Q2. In the table below, identify protective factors which could limit the impact of risk factors. You must provide at least 3 examples.

So now that you have looked at both risk factors and protective factors, you need to consider how protective factors can help to limit the impact risk factors can have. Make sure that you describe clearly how these protective factors will be of benefit.

Q3. In the box below, explain the role of resilience in relation to children and young people's mental health

When answering this question use the information provided in session 1 page 3 of the course materials as well as your own research to explain how important resilience is in children and young peoples mental health.

Q4. In the box below, identify ways to support children and young people to recognise risk factors and signs of distress in themselves.

When answering this question think about how you can support/educate children and young people to recognise risk factors and signs of distress. Think about what both schools and families can do when formulating your answer.

Session 2 – Understand the Effects of Puberty and Developmental Changes

Q1. In the box below, describe the effects of puberty on children and young people.

For this question, you should consider how puberty affects both males and females. You could also think about how puberty affected you personally or someone close to you to, perhaps a sibling or your own children.

Q2. In the box below, describe how children and young people's identity, self-esteem and body image can affect their mental well-being

When formulating your answer for this question think about how the changes brought about during puberty affect children and young people's mental well-being. Use the course materials on page 1 of session 2 for guidance with this. As with question 1 you could also use your own experience of how puberty affected your mental well-being or someone close to you.

Q3. In the box below, describe the opportunities and challenges young people may face during the transition to adulthood.

For this question it is quite easy to focus on the challenges that the transition to adulthood can have but you should also consider the opportunities that the transition can have. As well as using the course materials for guidance with this, you could again consider the challenges and opportunities that you encountered in your own transition to adulthood.

Session 3 – Understand The Effects Of Bullying Or Abuse

Q1. In the table below, outline at least three different types of abuse which a child or young person may experience.

You looked at the various types of abuse in session 3 page 1. Using your learning from this, provide an outline of three different types in the table.

Q2. In the box below, state different ways bullying can occur.

As well as looking at the different ways bullying can occur that are mentioned in the course materials you may also want to consider other ways that this can occur. This may be from bullying that you have experienced personally or have witnessed.

Q3. In the box below, explain why some children or young people may be more vulnerable to abuse and/or bullying.

For this question you should use your learning from session 3 page 1 and consider why some people may be more vulnerable to abuse/bullying. As well as using the course materials you could also carry out your own research to assist you formulating your response.

Q4. In the box below, describe how witnessing abuse or bullying directed at others may affect a child or young person.

For this question think about the effect that witnessing bullying that is directed at others may have. When formulating your response to this question, use the course materials for guidance but you may also have personal experience of how this can affect a child or young person.

Q5. In the box below, explain how abuse or bullying directed at a child or young person may affect their mental health and well-being.

For this question you should consider the impact that abuse or bullying can have on children and young people's mental health and well-being. Think about the effects this may have on them physically, in their personal/social development and also the impact it can have on their education.
