Hints and Tips Unit 5

The information in this guide will be helpful to you when you are ready to complete your assessment:

Unit 5: Meeting Customer Needs

8000-255 Meeting customers needs

Section 1: Understand customer care and the benefits of good customer care

Q1. List basic principles associated with good customer care

For this answer it's acceptable to simply list the basic principles, try and include several in your answer. For a better answer you could add in a few words to demonstrate your understanding of each one.

Q2. Outline a company's customer care policy

This answer will be a short description, approximately four sentences, that briefly describes a customer care policy. Your answer should focus on the workplace.

Q3. Explain the benefits of an organisation having customer service standards

Your answer will need to include at least two different benefits and must focus on the workplace. Think about how the customer service standards benefit the workplace as a whole. You could also consider what the consequence is of not having the standards in place.

Q4. Outline common barriers to good customer care

You must include at least two different barriers to good customer care in your answer. A brief description for what the barrier is and why it affects good customer care should also be included.

Q5. Describe examples of good practice in customer care

You must include at least 2 different examples. Describe the examples and why they are good practice, what outcomes do they achieve?

Section 2: Know how to meet customer needs

Q1. Describe the difference between internal and external customers

Within this answer you should include what an internal customer is and what an external customer is. What makes them different? Include examples if you can.

Q2. Identify the needs and expectations of a customer

You should include some detail with each need/expectation that you identify. Think about why the customer has this need/expectation.

Q3. Explain why it is important to meet or exceed customer expectations

As an explain question you must include reasoning within your answer. Think about the needs that you identified in Q2 and here, explain the reason for why it's important. What will the customer and/or organisation gain for the expectations being exceeded?

Q4. Explain how to effectively deal with complaints in own area of responsibility

Another explain question so think about how to effectively deal with complaints, what should be done and what outcome is expected. You could also consider what happens if a complain is not dealt with effectively.

Q5. Describe how to deal with difficult customer(s) behaviour

Ensure that you provide a description for this answer and do not simply list things that can be done. Be sure to stick the 'how' to deal with difficult customers. Are there different types of people or behaviours that are best dealt with in a certain way?

Section 3: Understand the importance of collecting, storing and interpreting customer feedback

Q1. Explain the importance of customer feedback

To explain this, think about why customer feedback is important and what it tells the organisation? Is there any difference if an organisation does not receive customer feedback, what's likely to happen?

Q2. Describe different methods of collecting formal and informal feedback from customers

You must include two different methods in your answer and include both formal and informal feedback. Describe each method that you mention and consider why it might be the right one to use.

Q3. Explain how to interpret feedback from customers

Think about the different forms of feedback for your answer. You could choose just one or a few to offer a full explanation. Are there different ways of interpreting different feedback. Why is it important that it is interpreted and what type of information are you likely to find out.

Q4. Describe how to improve customer satisfaction

For this description ensure that you focus on the 'how' to improve customer satisfaction. What steps can be taken, or new procedures implemented? Don't just list them. Make sure that you describe each one that you include.

Q5 Outline implications of the Data Protection Act for collecting, storing and using customer feedback

You will need to include at least two implications from this legislation. Outline what the implications are, how they affect the use of customer feedback. You could also consider the implications of not following the legislation.
