

Organizing and combining information

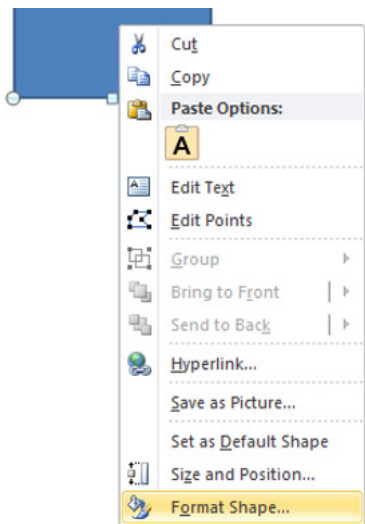

There are lots of features in Word that you can use to make changes to your documents:

- Resizing objects
- Positioning objects
- Cropping objects
- Order
- Grouping

Resizing objects

The first thing you need to do to resize an image, table, shape or chart is 'click' to select it.

When the object is selected, it will appear with small white circular handles around the edge. To resize your object, simply click and drag any of these handles, then release your mouse button once the object is the size you want it to be.

When formatting pictures or shapes, you can also click on the object with your right mouse button and select Format Shape or Format Picture from the menu that appears – this will give you the option to change the way your shape/ picture looks (for example, by changing the colour, opacity or rotating it).

Positioning objects

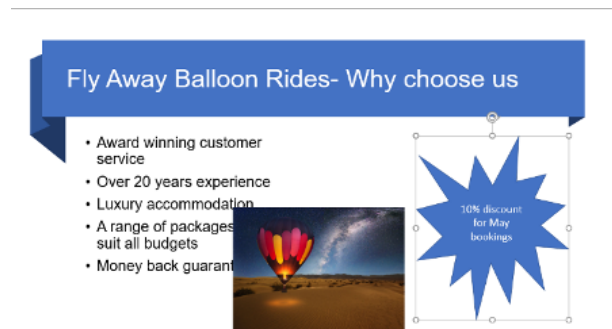

If you want to move your object around the slide, first click on the object so that it is selected (again, you will see the small white circular handles around the image).

Now, click and hold the mouse button on the object and drag the object into its new location on the slide. When you're happy with the position of the object, release your mouse button to 'drop' it into place.

Order

Sometimes, it may be useful to change the order of any images that you insert into your presentations. To do this:

1. Click on the image you want to order, and then click on the Format tab.
2. Use the Bring Forward and Send Backward buttons in the Arrange group to change the order of your images.

Grouping

You can also group your objects so that they remain in the same position in relation to one another. To do this:

1. Hold down the CTRL key and select the objects that you want to group.
2. On the Format tab, in the Arrange group, click on the arrow next to the Group icon, then click on Group.
3. Your images will now remain in the same position in relation to one another.

You can also use the Design Ideas tool to recreate your slide:
